

COMPLETE LIST OF NAMES TO BE PLACED
ON PRIMARY BALLOTList Submitted by Secretary of Commonwealth and The CommissionersA NUMBER OF CONTESTSList of Aspirants for Various Nominations Are Here Given

DOYLESTOWN, April 11.—The official list of all candidates whose names will be printed on the primary ballots for the primary election to be held in Bucks county on Tuesday, April 28, has been submitted by Secretary of the Commonwealth David L. Lawrence and the Bucks County Commissioners for publication.

There are two Republican candidates for State Treasurer, with one to be nominated. They are Frank L. Pinola, Kingston, former State Commander of the American Legion and Frank P. B. Thompson, of Philadelphia, whose name will appear first on the ballot.

The Democrats have but one candidate for State Treasurer, F. Clair Ross, of Butler. For Republican candidate for Auditor General, E. Arthur Sweeney, of Greensburg, is unopposed, while the Democrats have a contest, with Warren R. Roberts, Bethlehem, and Edward B. Zimmerman, Philadelphia, as candidates.

The name of William E. Borah, Boise, Idaho, will appear on the Republican ticket for President, while the Democratic ticket will have the names of Franklin D. Roosevelt and Henry Breckinridge, of New York.

For delegates-at-large to the Republican National Convention, with seven to be nominated, there are eight candidates, while the Democrats have seventeen candidates with sixteen to be elected.

For alternate delegates-at-large there is no opposition on the Republican or Democratic tickets.

With one to be nominated there are two candidates for Congress on the Republican ticket in the ninth district (Bucks-Lehigh), with the name of Theodore R. Gardner, Emaus, appearing first and the name of Horace W. Schantz, of Macungie, second. On the Democratic ticket there is also a contest for Congress with Oliver W. Frey, of Allentown, the present incumbent, opposed by Charles H. Walp, of Allentown. The Socialist ticket has Louis Shoemaker, of Perkasie, as a candidate for Congress in the ninth district.

For Representative in General Assembly, the Republican candidates have no opposition. They are the present incumbents, Thomas B. Stockham, Morrisville, and Wilson L. Yeakel, Perkasie. The Democratic candidates, with no contest, are Charles F. Hoffmann, of Morrisville, and Harry E. Barnard, Sellersville. The Socialist candidates are Howard S. Besch, Sellersville, and Jacob H. Root, Parkland.

For district delegate-at-large to the Republican National Convention, the Republicans unopposed include Joseph R. Grundy, Bristol, and Samuel W. Traylor, Allentown. The Democrats, however, have a contest for this office, with four candidates including Frank E. Hausman, Allentown; Charles H. Ort, Quakertown; Joseph F. Gorman, Allentown; and Dr. John A. Flood, New Hope.

Republican alternate district delegates from the ninth district include Mrs. Anna B. Cooper, Pineville, and Harry L. Baker, Catawauqua. The Democrats have a contest with three candidates including Sarah M. Kerr, Allentown; J. Donald Snyder, Quakertown, and James G. Shapcott, Eddington, with two to be nominated.

For member of the State Committee the Republicans have no contest, with Elisabeth S. Palmer, Langhorne, and A. Harry Clayton, Doylestown, as the candidates. The Democrats, with one man and one woman to be nominated, have a contest with Webster S. Achey, Buckingham township, John F. Smoyer, Bristol, and Carrie J. Shellenberger, Doylestown, as the candidates.

Local Candidates

In Doylestown Borough the Republicans have no contests. The candidates are as follows: First Ward, county committee, A. Harry Clayton and Mrs. Nellie W. Groff; Second Ward, Daniel G. Fretz and Mrs. Minerva F. Marjolin; Third Ward, second precinct, Joseph A. Steelman and Mrs. Hannah R. Leator; Third Ward, second precinct, Thomas Hart and Mrs. L. O. Lyons.

HELD FOR ALLEGED SHOOTING OF MAN*Farm Manager Charged With Shooting a Farm
Hand*FOLLOWING ARGUMENT

DOYLESTOWN, April 11.—Justice of the Peace W. Carlisle Hobensack on Thursday afternoon held John L. Vernet, of Trevoise, 38-year-old general manager of the Warminster Farms Dairies, Inc., who was given a hearing on the charges of aggravated assault and battery and assault and battery with intent to kill, for the next term of criminal court in $1,000 bail.

Richard Wells, 37-year-old farm hand, the first witness to testify, said that the defendant called him a vile name and told him "I've taken enough from you, take your glasses off."

Following a brawl, in which the defendant and Wells engaged for some time, Wells testified that Vernet whipped out a 25-calibre revolver.

"I saw the gun pointed at my head. The first shot entered above my knee. About three feet away from me, he shot me through the thigh, breaking my pelvis bone. Another shot entered my elbow and the fourth shot went wild."

Wells was taken to the Abington Hospital, where he was treated for two shots in his legs, one in the elbow. He limped into the office of Justice of the Peace Hobensack, Thursday.

Dr. John Hoffmiller, Newtown veterinarian, who witnessed the tussle and shooting, because he was at the dairies farm to treat a cow, testified he saw the revolver in the defendant's hand. "The defendant must have been on the ground at least a half dozen times, whether he was knocked down or not I cannot say. I know that I picked up his glasses at one time and after trying to stop the fight said 'Go ahead and fight, see if I care!'"

The brawl which ended in a shooting, took place March 23.

The defendant offered no testimony. About 20 people attended the hearing, quite a number of whom were women.

SELLERSVILLE TAX RATE
IS SET AT 15 MILLSBids for Purchase of Borough Truck Were Very NumerousMAY BUY SMALL TRACT

SELLERSVILLE, April 11.—Twenty-five persons attended a meeting of Borough Council, when the tax rate for the borough was set at 15 mills, the same as last year. The reason for the unusually large attendance was the interest in the bids for the purchase of a borough truck, street oil and borough garbage removal which were opened by the borough secretary, Charles R. Witmer.

Automobile dealers attending the meeting were: Morris Berman, Red Hill; William Shelly, Quakertown; George Steelman, Perkasie; E. A. Sonder, Sellersville; M. T. Weisel, Perkasie, and Herbert Heinericks, Sellersville.

Because there were so many varied bids, Council decided to investigate each make of truck and the bids will not be awarded until an adjourned meeting to be held on Monday evening, April 20.

Council awarded a trial order for 250 gallons of street oil to the Atlantic Refining Company. Five bids were received to supply the town with street oil.

Clifford McGoldsmith, Tylersport; William Volnick, Perkasie and Nick Ford, Earlington, submitted bids for the collection of garbage in the borough this year. Mr. Ford, who has been collecting the garbage here for several years, received a renewal of his contract.

Samuel Groff and John Foshenner, the tax collectors, reported that the amounts of the delinquent taxes have been greatly diminished during the past month. This has been brought about by collecting the levies and by using the full extent allowed by the law. Several professional tax collectors were employed to do this, and only about six persons have not paid their taxes for 1932 and 1933.

An offer to sell the Merrill tract located on the Sellersville park site was made to Council by an attorney representing a bank in Baltimore. He offered to sell the 9½-acre tract for $1,000, provided Council makes a down payment immediately. He will give Council two years to pay the remainder.

South Langhorne Fixes Tax Rate at Ten Mills

SOUTH LANGHORNE, Apr. 11.—South Langhorne Borough Council held its April meeting when the tax rate for 1936 was fixed at nine mills for borough purposes and one mill for fire protection. A penalty of 5% will be added to taxes unpaid by Jan. 1st, 1937.

The street committee was instructed to proceed with repairs to the streets damaged by snow and ice.

France to Watch Hitler

Geneva, Apr. 11.—If Adolf Hitler increases his troops in the Rhineland, or sets up heavy artillery, France will call for an immediate conference of the Locarno powers for swift punitive action.

France's diplomats took this last stand today in grim determination to smash some material consolation out of defeat at the hands of the British, around the League of Nations and the Locarno conference table.

Miami, Fla., Apr. 11.—The Pan-American launches rescued 22 of the 25 persons aboard the clipper No. 15374 when it collided with a launch in an attempt to take off from the Port of Spain, Trinidad, early today, it was announced by officials of the company.

WEEK OF SERVICES
HAS BEEN OUTLINEDHistory Shows Congregation
Has Been An Active
OneWAS FOUNDED IN 1845

Ninety years of Christian ministry is the record of The Bristol Presbyterian Church, which this month will mark the completion of nine decades of service in this borough.

A week of special programs will be included in the anniversary month, the first affair to be conducted on Monday evening, April 13th, this being followed by affairs each evening next week with the exception of Saturday, and concluding with special Sunday programs on April 19th.

The Rev. S. Brooks Knowlton is the present pastor, he being the 12th to serve this church in a pastoral capacity. The Rev. James M. Harlow was the founder and stated supply, his term of service dating from 1845 to 1850. Others in succession were: the Rev. Franklin D. Harris, 1851-61; the Rev. Alfred Taylor, 1862-1864; the Rev. Henry F. Lee, 1865-1867; the Rev. Jacob Weidman, 1868-73; the Rev. James H. Mason Knox, D. D., LL. D., 1873-83; the Rev. Edward P. Shields, D. D., 1884-97; the Rev. Charles Allison, 1897-1903; the Rev. Charles E. Burns, 1903-18; the Rev. Henry M. Hartman, 1918-29; the Rev. William M. Yeomans, stated supply, 1929-30; and the Rev. Knowlton who accepted a call from this congregation in 1930.

The activities during the anniversary week will be varied.

Boy Scout Troop No. 1, the oldest troop in Bristol, and the second oldest in Bucks County, and which is sponsored by this church, will have its 20th anniversary supper in connection with the church anniversary, this affair to occur Monday evening. All old members of the troop, as well as present Scouts of the troop, Cub Pack and Sea Scout Ship Elks, together with the fathers of the boys, are invited.

Women of the church have planned a social affair for Tuesday evening; the men's organizations will be in charge Wednesday, the speaker being Dr. Reid S. Dickson, secretary of the Board of Pensions of the church; Thursday, combined meeting of young people's organizations; Friday, annual Mothers' and Daughters' banquet; Sunday, April 19th, evening service, churches of Bristol invited, Bristol Glee Club giving selections.

The financial history of the Church is included in one of the prized books of the congregation, the preamble dated May 23, 1844. The preamble states: "We the undersigned, sensible of reality and importance of religion and sound morals—that these are foundations of the hopes of our common country, and our happiness in the world to come—desirous that the rising generation as well as ourselves may be made partakers of that Gospel in which life and immortality are brought to light, feel it our duty as God hath prospered us, to contribute for the purpose of erecting a Presbyterian Church edifice in the Borough of Bristol, Bucks County, Pa., and we pledge ourselves to pay the amounts we severally subscribe on or before the first day of April, 1845."

The list of members at the time of organization totaled 14, this list being inclusive of: John Koons, Sarah P. Harlow, Abby M. Harlow, Anna M. Argine, Elisabeth Wright, Isaac Van Horn, Adaline Van Horn, Anna E. Van Horn, Mary Vanuxem, John McQuilkin, Mary McQuilkin, W. W. Wallace, Clara Wallace, Elisabeth Evans.

The records which follow show that the Presbytery met at Germantown on April 22nd, 1846, and "received the

Parents View Exhibit Of Children's Work

LANGHORNE, Apr. 11.—The regular meeting of the Langhorne-Middletown Parent-Teacher Association was held on Tuesday evening, at the high school building.

Parents visited the grade building to see the exhibitions of booklets, made on various subjects including health, geography and penmanship, sponges, cut outs, clay modeling, and regular everyday work done by the pupils of the various grades.

The business meeting was called to order by Mrs. Pickett, the president, followed by the reading of the minutes by Mrs. W. Davenport.

The Parents and Teachers Association expressed their heartfelt sympathy in the loss of a well loved teacher and friend, Miss Wildman.

Declarations by Doris Parker and Cathryn Cook, and songs by the Junior and Senior choruses given at the Bucks County Interscholastic Meet were enjoyed by everyone.

sary in Connection With Birthday CelebrationPLANS ARE COMPLETED

Parking will not be permitted on Mill street, between six and eight o'clock, Saturday night. This rule is to be enforced to permit the free movement of the Boy Scout parade. Motorists are requested to co-operate with the police department.

LINFORD J. JONES,
Chief of Police.

Sweeping into "action," today, there will be over 100 people in 184 official relationships to assist Scout Executive William F. Livermore, as the administrative director, to successfully conduct the ninth birthday gathering of the Bucks County Scouting Council. It is difficult to realize the vast amount of work and necessary detail involved in the conducting of the scouting birthday events. Hundreds of details have been carefully organized and thousands of tabulations must be made to calculate who are the different champions, Mr. Livermore has been ably assisted by the devoted members of the Bristol Ninth Scouting Birthday Committee led by District Chairman, Walter W. Pitzonka.

Comprising the local committee on the arrangements have been Paul V. Forster and William Lange, Sr., as vice chairmen. Dr. George T. Fox for accident arrangements with Harriman Hospital. Leaders of other committee functions have been Hampton Morris, finance; Thomas Jones, Lester Helwig, and Lester B. Shoemaker for refreshments; David Hertzler, movies; Dr. J. J. Willaman, parade music; Roy Fry, police details, parade route and safety precautions; Charles Moerman, publicity; District Commissioner Herbert A. Pettit, Sr., service corps; Robert C. Ruelh, food distribution; and Scout Executive William F. Livermore, administrative details.

The headquarters staff for the ninth scouting birthday under the leadership of the Scout Executive, will comprise Mrs. Alice W. Tomlinson, the office secretary; Mate Robert Wright, staff orderly; District Commissioner Herbert A. Pettit, Sr., service corps; Sakine Burtis C. Tomlinson, Order of the Arrow; Edwin Blair, co-operative banner; S. A. Miller, rally feed; Scoutmaster Gilbert W. Carlin, signs; Warren P. Snyder, facilities; and the directors of all of the events.

Officials for the exhibition drill will be: director, S. A. Miller, Langhorne; scorer, Robert E. Brown, Sellersville; inspector, A. B. Stiles, Croydon; first leader, William Lange, Sr., Andalusia; second leader, Rev. Ernest Vandenberg, Hartsville; first commander, James Marion, Yardley; second commander, Jack Burgess, Morrisville; policing, F. Leslie Craven, Harboro; orderly, Oscar Booz, Bristol; traffic (1), Ralph Hart, Bristol; and traffic (2), Walter Hauser, Bristol.

The highly competitive Scoutercraft championship meet requires a group of outstanding experts in their respective subjects who will be led by Edwin Blair, of New Hope, with Walter Heffterich, Chalfont, as scorer, and Skipper Fred R. Herman, Bristol, as plaer. Experts include: rope work, Joseph N. Pattison, 3rd, Philadelphia Council, Boy Scouts of America; cooking, Joseph A. Zalot, Langhorne; signaling (timing), Edwin Blair, New Hope; signaling (scorer), Charles Dannenberg, Chester County Council, Boy Scouts of America; signaling (finish), Robert H. Kehr, Dublin; signaling (finish), 2), Clarence F. Hawk, Doylestown; signaling, (checker), 1), Frederick H. Schmidt, Perkasie; signaling (checker), 2), George E. Dorfner, Doylestown; judging, David Neill, Bristol; observation, Dr. J. J. Willaman, Bristol; timing, Clarence F. Hawk, Doylestown; and thousand-legger (2), Fred R. Herman, Bristol;

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Apr. 11.—Three persons, two of them residents of the United States and the third an Englishman, were drowned today when a Pan-American clipper dipped its nose into the Gulf of Paria.

The trio were trapped in their seats by their life belts and unable to get to the surface after the big 20 ton clipper sank to the bottom.

The dead were: Ramon Martinez, New York City; Amadio Lopez, Miami, Fla., and Eric Rappaport, of London, England.

The big sea plane was taking off when the pilot observed a small boat in its path. In an attempt to avoid hitting the boat, the pilot throttled down his machine and tried to spin slightly to miss the boat.

The sudden check, witnesses said, made the big ship nose down.

WELCOME SCOUTS

Today marks the ninth anniversary of scouting in Bucks County and celebration of the event is to be held here by scouts and those interested in scouting throughout Bucks County.

Bristol has always held a warm spot in its heart for scouting and what it represents. Many of our boys and quite a few of our men take an active part in the movement and devote much of their time to the furtherance of the ideas and ideals of scouting.

Scouting makes for better men and anything that makes for better men, makes for a better community and a better world.

The scout movement is not of a militaristic nature, but it is one which builds character, teaches love of the great outdoors, inculcates in the minds of youth that they have a definite niche to fill in the world and that they are to be of service to others.

Bristol today opens wide its arms and shouts "welcome" to our visitors. It is hoped that your stay here will be a pleasant one; that today's event will not only mark the completion of nine years of growth, but that it will signal the beginning of 10 years of progress.

EASTER

On the first Easter morning one said: "He that was laid in the guarded tomb, has disappeared; they say He has arisen from the dead." Roman authority hushed up that report. That official act is all that is known of the career of the Roman officer in charge. Doubtless he and his confederates considered him a great man; incomparably greater than the One who was buried in the guarded tomb.

Later, one who went about preaching the doctrine of the resurrection, said that to some it was a stumbling block; to others, foolishness. The formal and official religionists had trouble fitting it into their theology. The philosophers could not make it consistent with their reasoning. But the handful, the 10 who first believed, increased to hundreds, to millions, and the belief ran beyond nations and over continents.

Revolutions intervened. Oppressive authority on many occasions took action to suppress the idea. Their control passed. The faith remained.

It is a custom among many to assemble to watch through the night till the hour that ushers in Easter. They welcome it with exchange of salutations, "The Lord is risen!" And the answer is "He is risen indeed!"

To some, a stumbling block; to some, foolishness, but to millions the expression of a great hope that will not be given up.

Science is something that can break an atom into 20 pieces and never worked out a mending tissue for treaties.

Dr. Einstein thinks matter may be a product of electricity and gravity. Could it not be a misprint for gravity?

With growing emphasis on quints and quads in the news, a child born unaccompanied these days is virtually a hermit.

BEHIND THE SCENES AT HARRISBURG

HARRISBURG, Apr. 11.—Political developments at Harrisburg took a back seat in favor of flood news the past two weeks. With his own home inundated Republican State Chairman M. Harvey Taylor turned the Republican State headquarters here into a receiving station for Red Cross contributions and the office force worked day and night turning in thousands of dollars given by the people of Harrisburg and vicinity for the relief of flood sufferers. The Republican headquarters worked in co-operation with radio station WHP and as rapidly as contributions were received they were broadcast, thus keeping up interest in the money-raising campaign.

Meanwhile Chairman Taylor sent a telegram to President Roosevelt joining with Governor Earle in asking that WPA and other federal relief funds be made available in sufficient amounts to take care of the work of repair, clean-up and sanitation throughout Pennsylvania. To this telegram Chairman Taylor received in reply from Federal Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins.

"The President asks us to acknowledge your telegram of March 21st. The President has allocated an additional $25,000,000 to be used to employ WPA workers where needed on emergency flood prevention and on repairs to public property damaged by flood, including bridges, streets, highways, sewers, publicly owned utilities, etc. Also will do work on private property where public health or danger to life is involved. You may be assured that Pennsylvania WPA is fully authorized to meet any situation involving immediate mobilization WPA workers in flood areas."

Senator George L. Reed at about the same time sent to Governor George H. Earle a letter complimenting him on the promptness and efficiency with which he had tackled the flood problem, pointing out to him the precedent established by Governor Beaver in expending State money for flood relief and Beaver's justification at the hands of Governor Pattison and succeeding Legislature, promising Earle Republican support in case he found it necessary to expend more than was immediately available for the purpose.

Meanwhile important political conferences were set aside by both parties and thought concentrated on flood relief. Result—prompt attention to the needs of the emergency and the shortening of the primary campaign by a full fortnight.

INCREASE in New Deal Jobholders.. AND THEIR COST TO TAXPAYERS

THIS DATA is from official Civil Service reports. It does not contain hidden Government employees, possibly 300 thousand or more, nor their cost of a possible 300 million dollars or more. Hidden payroll additions include foreman, assistant foreman and "straw bosses" charged to WPA projects; HOLC, AAA, CCC and other alphabetical per diem workers. Senator Rush D. Holt, New Deal Senator from West Virginia, showed that in one district in his state, administrative employees and hidden employees were consuming more than one-third of the relief funds, and numbered more than one to each 12 relief workers, whom they supervised. He said in a speech on the Senate floor: "approximately $1,000,000 of the two and three-fourth million dollars are going to a few political henchmen instead of going to the people who need relief in that district."

For rent--- ONE CLOSET suitable for skeletons

IT'S THE ONE where you used to keep your family skeletons.

Not the kind referred to as "Uncle Will's unfortunate weakness." The kind that haunted you with reminders of unfortunate purchases. . . .

Appliances bought on snap judgment. Gadgets that didn't run. Dresses you snatched at the last moment — and never wore after the first. All things that cost too much and gave too little. Merchandise from questionable sources—hastily, inconsiderately secured.

You have fewer of these sad mistakes to put away than you used to. You are spending your money more carefully nowadays. Hard times—experience—have contributed their lessons. But above all others, one factor has stood your constant guard.

The advertising in this newspaper protects you against wasteful, unsatisfactory expenditures. Advertised products live up to their specifications—and yours.

By reading the advertising—not sometimes but always—carefully and critically—you provide yourself with a knowledge of values, prices and names that's yours when you need it. Dispense with that upstairs closet. Buy by name in 1936. You'll collect no buying blunders that way!

"THERE'S MURDER IN THE AIR" by ROY CHANSLOR

SYNOPSIS

Beautiful Ruth Tyler, blind daughter of former District Attorney Daniel Tyler, is psychic and foretells murders, but is powerless to reveal enough information so that the tragedies can be averted. These manifestations occur while Ruth, a talented musician, plays her violin—and always at night. The girl becomes terror-stricken and suddenly, this strange power grips her. Her father enlists the aid of Dr. Jan Karasc, noted psychiatrist, but as Karasc is working on another case, he sends his young assistant, Nat Benson, to study the girl. Nat is introduced to Ruth as the son of her father's college chum, in the city on a visit. One night, when Ruth has a spell, Nat prevents Tyler from trying to soothe her, with the result her vision is keener than ever and she is able to reveal the name of the person marked for death. This time it is Paul Y. Gordon, an international banker. Nat telephones Gordon, warning him his life is in danger. Next morning, Nat, Tyler and Ruth call on Gordon. He is skeptical of Ruth's psychic powers and does not take the warning seriously. He claims he knows of no one who would want to kill him. Tyler is exasperated and the trio leave. Checking up on Gordon, Nat learns there is no record of his past beyond 1917 when he became a member of the firm of Street & Company. In that year a member of the company, David Grahame, and his wife lost their lives on the "Lusitania" and Gordon adopted their daughter, Doris. An autobiographical sketch states that his second marriage was to Carlotta Montez in Madrid in 1916. Beyond that Gordon's life is sketchy. The autobiography also records that he married Eleanor Cummings in Chicago in 1904, yet the Chicago Bureau of Vital Statistics has no record of that, nor is there any record of the birth of his two children. Everything now depends on Ruth.

CHAPTER X

But three days passed without incident. Ruth played every night in the living-room, without interruption. Afterward, in their own rooms, Nat and Tyler lay awake every night for hours, listening. On the second night they heard the music. But it did not falter.

On the fourth day, in the afternoon, Nat sat in Ruth's sitting-room, talking idly with her. Tyler had gone out directly after lunch and had not returned. Nat's mind wandered. He hardly heard Ruth as she talked along. He was thinking of a pair of high-heeled slippers sticking out from under a yellow roadster, of a piquant smear of oil on a firm and delicate nose, of a friendly smile and the gay wave of a dim arm.

Ruth stopped, and he looked up to see that she was smiling at him.

"Your thoughts are far away, Nat," she said.

He laughed, a little embarrassed.

"You were thinking about the girl we met on the road?" she said.

"You are a mind-reader," he smiled.

"In the spring a young man's fancy—" Ruth said, gently teasing.

"Is the very pretty?"

"Very," Nat said.

Later in the afternoon he tried to read a novel. But he could not keep his mind on the printed words. He was anxious and uneasy over the prolonged interlude of quiet. If danger threatened Paul Gordon, might it not also threaten the lovely Doris? He hoped not. . . . And yet, if he could shield her—

His thoughts were interrupted by the arrival of Tyler.

"Would it interest you to know, Nat," said Tyler, "that this house is being watched, and that I have been followed all over New York for more than three hours?"

Nat stared at Tyler for a moment blankly. Then he chuckled.

"I guess Mr. Paul Gordon is doing a little checking up on his own," he said.

"Perhaps," said Tyler gravely.

"But does it occur to you that this may be the work of some one else?"

Nat stepped quickly out into the darkness of Seventy-ninth Street and without looking about him, proceeded swiftly toward Central Park.

He heard footsteps. Some one was following him. Then it was a general surveillance of them all!

He smiled grimly as he turned the corner under the bright street-light, rapidly. Then he darted quickly into the building line, waited. A man in a gray soft hat came around the corner. Nat stepped forward, almost bumped into him. The man turned a sidelong glance upon him and then looked away hurriedly, walking on up Fifth Avenue.

Nat gazed after him thoughtfully. He was satisfied on one point, anyhow. The man was neither of the two tough-looking fellows he had observed at the Gordon estate. Just to be sure that the man was really following him, Nat walked south to Seventy-eighth Street and then turned east, stepped back and looked up Fifth Avenue. The man in the gray hat was hurrying toward the corner.

Nat went on around the block and back toward the house. Across the street, in a shadow, he saw another man. Well, maybe he'd do some guessing now. He turned in at the Tyler house and started up the stairs, taking out his key. As he opened the door, Ruth came out of the living-room, the violin under her arm.

"Nat?" she said.

"Yes."

"Good night," she said. And for the first time she kissed him—lightly, a sweet sisterly caress; and then she was swiftly, surely mounting the steps. He watched her out of sight, and then turned to find Tyler in the living-room doorway, looking at him with a grave face.

"It's come again, Nat," Tyler said.

Nat followed him back into the living-room.

"You were hardly out of the door when she asked for her violin," said Tyler. "I almost called to you. But I didn't want to break the mood. I could see she had that strange compulsion to play. She played only a bar or two, and then stopped." He paused and looked at Nat.

"Yes?" Nat said.

"She says the attempt to kill Gordon will be made very soon," Tyler said.

"Nothing more definite?" asked Nat.

"Nothing," said Tyler.

"Should we warn him now?"

"I don't know," said Tyler. "It's a frightful thing, I suppose, to gamble with a man's life. We'll do all we can for Gordon, despite his attitude. But you know how he is—he wouldn't believe us, unless we had something very definite."

"Then it's his gamble, not ours," said Nat. "We can only wait, and hope that Ruth will know when the time comes."

Tyler nodded. He bade Nat good night and went to his room. Nat thought of telephoning Dr. Karasc. But it was late, nearly midnight. And he doubted whether the Doctor would give him any definite advice. No, the thing to do was to be ready. When the time came, they could warn Gordon. If he ignored it—

He went to his room and prepared to keep a long vigil. He read for hours, doggedly, finishing a novel. Then he rose, yawned, stretched and looked at the time. Ten minutes to four. He'd better get some sleep. He was just taking off his tie when the music began.

He stopped, his hands still on the tie. His face stared back at him, tensely, from the mirror. Then what he strained for, what with pounding pulse for, happened. The music stopped suddenly, on a crashing discord. Stopped as it had the night when Zangara the assassin was about to strike!

Nat flung himself at the door. Tyler was just emerging from his own room. Without a word, the two men ran down the long hallway. Tyler opened the door. It was quite dark. Nat fumbled for the switch. When the lights came on, they saw Ruth standing still in the middle of the floor, her fingers caressing the strings, her face dead white.

"Thank God you've come!" she said. "Quick! There's a murder in the air!"

Nat sprang to the phone, dialed the operator, barked Gordon's private number, urged the utmost speed. Ruth had begun to speak again.

"Warn him that the assassin is about to strike," she said. "The danger is immediate. It's a matter of minutes at the most. I can feel it. . . . Death—waiting—waiting—but horribly imminent—dreadfully close!"

The dark house on the rolling hillside of Westchester slumbered quietly. At the main entrance Cooke, the lean man with the hooked nose, was passing the time of night with Nelson, the roaming sentry. It was five minutes to four.

The phone at Gordon's bedside jangled. He was awake in an instant. The private wire! He seized it quickly, without bothering to turn on the light.

"Hello," he said.

"Mr. Gordon," said an excited voice. "This is Nat Benson."

"Are you crazy?" barked Gordon. "I thought I told you—"

The voice interrupted pre-emptorily:

"Don't be a fool! I'm trying to warn you. You are in great danger! At any moment you—"

"Good God, man, let me alone!" Gordon cried, angrily. "Can't you understand—"

Another voice came on the phone, suddenly, tense, vibrant, a girl's voice.

"Mr. Gordon!" it said. "Look out! Some one is about to fire!"

Gordon, in a swift reflex motion, flung himself sideways in the bed. Then, simultaneously, there was a spurt of flame, and the crash of a pistol-shot.

Ruth, on the other end of the wire, turned a white face toward her father.

"It's happened," she said dully.

Gordon's eyelids flickered. He blinked spasmodically in the bright glare of the light. Then he raised one hand, half-shaded his face and opened his eyes slowly. He was on the bed; and bending over him was his beautiful wife Carlotta, in negligee, her face filled with anxiety, her dark eyes clouded with concern.

He felt her cool hand on his forehead, which throbbed terribly. At sight of his open eyes Carlotta gave a little gasp and bent closer to him. His head still rang, rang with the sound of a shot, and with the terrific impact of something against his skull. He felt the flesh at the roots of his hair gingerly. There was a great lump there, and something wet.

Carlotta smiled, then, tenderly and brushed her lips against his head where it throbbed. "Darling," she breathed, "you are all right?"

"I—I don't know," said Gordon shakily. "My head—"

Then he saw the others grouped back of Carlotta: his young daughter Helene, pale and trembling; Doris, white-faced but controlled; Johnson the servant; Nelson the squat broad-shouldered Swede in charge of the night outposts; and his son David, who now pushed closer and bent over him.

"You must have struck your head on the edge of that table," David said. He indicated an overturned table beside the bed. It was the heavy, square bedside table on which the reading-lamp had stood. The broken lamp lay beside it.

"But there—there was a shot," Gordon said, his mind clearing. He sat bolt upright quickly, ignoring Carlotta's hands, glancing quickly at Nelson. "Nelson!" he said. "You caught the fellow?"

Nelson shook his head, puzzled. "None of the boys saw a soul," he said.

Carlotta gently but insistently forced Gordon back onto the pillow.

"Now, Paul," she said softly, you must lie still until Dr. Grace comes. David got him on the phone."

At the word "phone" Gordon struggled suddenly to rise. He remembered now. The phone! Carlotta was trying to press him back, but he waved her aside and sat up, his eyes going to the telephone on the stand at the other side of his bed. The receiver was in place.

"The phone," he said harshly. "Why—I don't know," said David. "Johnson got here first. Did you notice, Johnson?"

"Yes sir," said Johnson. "It was off the hook."

"Now, Paul, you lie back and rest," Carlotta interposed. "What has the phone got to do—"

"Was anyone on the wire?" Gordon interrupted, addressing his son. "Dad, I—I don't know," David confessed. "I was pretty excited, you see. Thought you'd been shot, at first, when I saw that gash in your head. I—I just remember jiggling the hook madly until the operator answered. Then I called Dr. Grace."

Gordon stopped the sudden general babble of voices with a gesture and reached for the telephone, called Tyler's number. Again he motioned for silence, as questions started to well up from the group about the bed. . . .

church organization at Bristol under their care."

Ninety years ago the Presbyterians in Bristol were few. The Rev. James M. Harlow was then residing in Newportville, and was the pastor of the historic congregation of Bensalem and stated supply at Centerville, now Emille. To the Rev. Harlow the Bristol Presbyterian Church owes its inception. He began to preach in this borough in the Lyceum building, on July 2, 1843. After four services on as many Sabbaths a Sabbath School was organized with 14 scholars and four teachers. It grew apace, and at the end of four years was second in numbers to no school in the borough. The Sabbath School and preaching were continued in the Lyceum building until the basement of the church was finished. The lot on which the first church stood was purchased at a sheriff's sale on December 21, 1843, for $1250. The frame building on the rear of the lot was occupied by Mr. Harlow and his family in the Spring of 1844. In 1845 the Rev. Harlow began to collect funds and material for the church building. The fervent minister also gave of his labor, and in the Spring of 1846 dug out the foundations and filled the trenches with boulders obtained from vessels which came from the East for coal. The boulders came in ballast to Bristol, and as they were not permitted to be thrown overboard, the minister engaged to take them from the wharf, hauling them to the church site on Radcliffe street with his own horse. The property had been purchased by the Rev. Harlow in his own name, and was held by him until January, 1846, when it was conveyed by him to the trustees. The ever-faithful Mr. Harlow served as a stated supply until 1850.

It was in 1899 that the fine structure which is the present edifice of worship was erected, on the Cedar street end of the church property. The old structure on the Radcliffe street side remained until about 20 years ago when it was torn down. Improvements have been carried out in the present structure from time to time. Three years ago the basement was remodelled, and the entrance tower erected. During this year pews have been placed in the auditorium, and the choir loft remodelled.

The church membership list, as well as the several organizations connected with the church, have experienced steady growth, and all will share in the 90th anniversary program of next week.

C. C. C. CHAMPION TO APPEAR ON CARD

A champion of a C. C. C. camp will appear on the boxing card to be sponsored by the St. Ann's Athletic Association Easter Monday night in the Italian Mutual Aid Hall arena. The youth, Graze White, Germantown Boys Club, will be matched with Johnny Raccagno, one of the hardest hitters in the St. Ann's stable. Ten bouts will be held on the card which will be sanctioned by the Middle Atlantic District of the A. A. U.

Those who saw Raccagno in action a month ago when he knocked out James Rullo and John Johnson in one night will admit that the Purple and Gold fighter packs plenty of dynamite in his right hand. Now he is matched with an opponent who possesses just as hard blows in both of his mitts. This bout is expected to be a slugfest affair from the start.

After six weeks of exploring into the training camps of various boxing clubs, Match-maker Patsy Mofa has finally succeeded in securing an opponent for Vince Delia, crack Bristol south-paw. Delia will fight Fred Sasportas, who is well known in the amateur circles, having reached the semi-finals in several tournaments.

Chet Castor is booked with Salvatore Francesco, Mason. This bout is expected to be close, with both boys showing plenty of skill. Francesco and Castor both beat Lawrence Thorpe who was a runner-up in a recent A. A. U. tournament.

This makes six bouts that are now completed on the card. Besides the above, there is Zupes Zeffries and Frankie Falcone; Sammy Balocchi and Tony Campagno; and Tony Puccio and Ralph Mazzone. Mofa is now working on other bouts so as to have an all-Bristol card with Phil Quici, Jimmy Galeone, Tony Maglione, Hokey Leighton, Joie Zettler and Harry Davis as the other local fighters.

Reserve tickets for the show can be procured by phoning the St. Ann's club, 9934, and asking for Charles P. Alta.

To Deliver Copy To
Courier by Autogiro

In line with its policy of customer service, Lit Brothers department store will inaugurate a distinct innovation in department store advertising during this week of Springtime Lit Week sales, so that suburban customers will benefit promptly by the special values offered.

Having chartered the autogiro which was nationally publicized after its daring landing on the roof of the new Philadelphia post office (the first ship to land on the roof of a building carrying U. S. air-mail), Lit Brothers will forward the suburban newspapers advertising copy so that residents in the area can receive the same special offers at practically the same time as they are offered to Philadelphia patrons.

This novel service will be offered Monday, April 13, when a new type direct control wingless autogiro will take off from the Art Museum in Fairmount Park. It will be piloted by Lou Levy, considered by many, the outstanding giro pilot in the United States and one of the only two pilots in the country licensed to operate the wingless type ship.

The advertisement will appear in the Courier Tuesday, Lit Brothers is the first establishment to inaugurate this type of service for its suburban patrons.

The autogiro will deliver newspaper copy to the Courier in Bristol, landing at Fleetwings factory airport about 2:10.

SPORT SHOTS by Maxwell Gordon

We have had a number of requests lately to give our opinion on who has been, or is the outstanding athlete in Bristol . . . well, that is a rather tall order, don't you think . . . there has been any number of good athletes in some sport or other who were exceptional in one sport and not so good in another.

Take baseball for instance. Ted Roper was a swell pitcher in his day . . . the only thing that kept him from going into the big league was his lack of weight . . . but that was the only sport he excelled in. Gregg Hibbs, on the other hand, was an outstanding football and baseball player both in prep school and at Rutgers University. He also was a strong swimmer and fair basketball player.

Joe Roe, the fourth ward "game cock," is another lad who should be listed as having a chance for all-round honors . . . Joie is a great half-back on the local gridirons; a good baseball player; a crackerjack basketball player; and a boxer with a fair punch . . . he has also gone in for pole vaulting in a small way . . . while his older brother Eddie was outstanding as a baseball player, basketball court man and footballer.

George Dougherty, of the sixth ward, is another youngster who has all-round ability as boxer, track man, great third baseman and a swell halfback and basketball player . . . Sam Pearson, veteran tennis star, was another who was equally good in several sports . . . pitcher for the old Locust Club teams, basketball player and bowler and better than average at everyone of them . . . Sam still can take over most of his opponents on the tennis courts and is a consistent winner on the Elks' bowling team.

Ewald Henry, of Radcliffe street, was a great basketball player and baseball player both in college and on the local courts and sand lots . . . is a good bowler and a fair golfer . . . out excels in cribbage . . . ask "Doc" Watson . . . J. S. Fine is a former "tate champion marksman . . . and was a great football player . . . Larry David is a fast lad on the basketball court . . . he also played football and is still playing baseball in the Canadian League . . . and expects to go into a better league soon.

Jimmy Lake, of Bath street, is another boy who is a three-sport man, a good catcher on the local diamonds, a fast shifty halfback on the gridiron and has tried his hand as an amateur boxer . . . Al Bauer, another four-sport chap who was a star in all of them—basketball, football, swimming and canoeing . . . we believe that "Al" has more medals and cups for his athletic prowess than any other lad in Bristol.

We could go on and on telling about boys who were good in many sports hereabouts and still miss many of the outstanding ones . . . so if any of you readers know of any whom you think were good enough to be classed as the outstanding athletes in this section, tell us about them . . . please.

Over 100 Men Are Assisting the Scouts

thousand legger (3), Charles Dannenberg, Chester County Council.

The policing of the auditorium to give space for competitors will be in charge of Scoutmaster William B. Lyndall, Bristol Troop No. 6, orderly William Harkins, and Scouts Harry Stetson, Albert Conrad, Charles Doan, and William McCollick.

The blowers of the healthy notes from the bugles for the Bucks County bagging championship will be watched over by Director Friend E. Sheerer, Sellersville; form, Charles G. Brodie, Bristol; and orderly, Vincent Force, Bristol.

Owing to the large number of individuals passing into the Grand Theatre, in a short time for a show given by Manager Edward Lynn, there has been organized a large corps of ushers led by Skipper Fred R. Herman, S. S. S. Elks of Bristol with Skipper Robert F. Brenner, Croydon, S. S. S. Rainbow Clipper, as his associate. Mates and Seascouts "on duty" will be: Leonard Herman, John Ellis, Leonard Dyer, Harry Hinman, Marty Van Beveren, and Paul Vandergrift of Bristol; and Jack Mossbrook, Karl Kipp, Charles Kogel, Palmer Tochterman, Robert McGovern and Floyd Peters, of Croydon.

Members of both the Presbyterian and Methodist churches have rallied to the call for assistance to the Directors of food distribution, Robert C. Ruehl, Presbyterian; and Lester B. Shoemaker, Methodist. The Presbyterian churchmen assisting will be: sanitation, William Lefferts; traffic (1), Maurice Updike and Frank Welks; traffic (2), Harry Streeter and James Hetherington; traffic (3), George Bruden and John Black; traffic (4), William Sigafos and Leon Bell; and traffic (5), Thomas Harper. The churchmen from the Methodist Church will be: sanitation, Howard Smoyer; traffic (1), James Douglass and Ralph Bilderback; traffic (2), Francis Hampton and Charles Orr; traffic (3), William Warner, Jr., and Wilkinson Bracken; traffic (4), Richard Winslow, Charles Rathke, Livingston Joyce, Howard Combs, Harry Renk and Arthur Peterman.

With Walter W. Pitzonka as official marshal of the parade will be Field Commissioner Walter V. Rutherford, Philadelphia. It is taking forty individuals to participate in the official functions of this event serving as officers, marshals and inspectors. Roy Fry as police representative heads the list with first marshal, Herbert A. Pettit, Sr., Bristol; second marshal, William Burgess, Jr., Morrisville; third marshal, Clarence F. Hawk, Doylestown; fourth marshal, Paul R. Sine, Perkasie; fifth marshal, Friend E. Sheerer, Siles; sixth marshal, Joseph Livezey, Sr., Milford; first judge, Joseph Pattison, 3rd, Philadelphia Council; first associate, George E. Inspection officials for the Doylestown Rotary Club pack appearance cup, Bristol Exchange Club troop appearance cup and Quakertown Chamber of Commerce ship appearance cup will be: Attendance, flags and color guard, Walter V. Rutherford, Doylestown; insignia, Eugene Boehret, Chalfont; uniform, William D. Knight, Croydon; and appearance, Paul R. Sine, Perkasie. The following will be district inspection officials: District No. 1, attendance, flags, and color guard, Herbert A. Pettit, Sr., Bristol; insignia, A. B. Stiles, Croydon; uniform, William Amick, Sr., Cornwells; and appearance, David Neill, Bristol. District No. 2, attendance, flags and color guard, William Burgess, Jr., Morrisville; insignia, Jack Burgess, Morrisville; uniform, Albert M. White, Morrisville; and appearance, Joseph A. Zalot, Langhorne. District No. 3, attendance, flag and color guard, Clarence F. Hawk, Doylestown; insignia, Eugene Boehret, Chalfont; uniform, Raymond D. Locke, Chalfont; and appearance, George E. Dorfner, Doylestown. District No. 4, attendance, flags and color guard, Paul R. Sine, Perkasie; insignia, Clayton P. Pritchard, Perkasie; uniform, Frederick H. Schmidt, Perkasie; and appearance, Robert E. Brown, Sellersville. District No. 5, attendance, flags and color guard, Friend E. Sheerer, Siles; insignia, William Wisham, Siles; uniform, Walter J. Baumgard, Siles; and appearance, Rev. Ernest Van Den Bosch, Hartsville.

Requiring nearly as many individuals the rally in the evening will have 37 people endeavoring to make it the "best time" of the year. Chief Burgess, Clifford L. Anderson, Bristol, Hon. Calvin S. Boyer, Doylestown, and District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn, Doylestown, are on the program conducted by Council Scout Commissioner William Burgess, Jr., of Morrisville. The bugler for the evening will be Leonard Herman, Bristol; bagging championship, A. R. Hendricks, Sellersville; annual feed, Paul V. Forster, Bristol; co-operative banner, William Lange, Sr., Andalusia; troop appearance cup, Andrew MacArthur, Bristol; stunt cup, Rev. S. Brooks Knowlton, Bristol.

Bristol ushers for the rally will be: Samuel Roberts, George Emy, Natalie Napa and Samuel Roberts, Jr. To handle the large group as it enters the auditorium; the Seascout Ship Sells-Perk, Skipper Francis P. Kemmerer, and Mate Theodore Raudenbusch will take over the ushering with the aid of Seascouts William Barndt, Earle Cressman, Harry Dwyer, James Groff, J. Paul Keller, Hubert Reichley, Donald Stoneback. Songs will be led for the evening by Walter V. Rutherford, Philadelphia.

Stunts for the evening will be given by leading Scout troops, including: Sellersville, "Mars-Chocolate-Spaghetti"; Morrisville No. 1, "The Dumb Coal Dealers"; Doylestown No. 1, "It Happened One Night"; Hartsville, "The Great O-Limp-Ics"; Andalusia, "Chemical Magic"; Doylestown No. 2, "School Room"; Richboro, "Life Savers"; and Edgely, "Uncle Ezra's Ford." Stage manager for the evening rally will be Chester A. Fouke, Quakertown; properties manager, Frederick H. Schmidt, Perkasie; shower, Marty VanBeveren; lights, George E. Dorfner, Doylestown; sound, Robert H. Kehr, Dublin; curtain, John Ellis, Bristol; first judge, Dr. J. J. Willaman, Bristol; second judge, William J. Ellis, Langhorne; third judge, Russell S. Kramer, Perkasie; scorer Clarence F. Hawk Doylestown; and pageant director, Harold D. R. Crumrine, Langhorne.

Scout leaders from other Councils giving their assistance are Associate Scout Executive Chester L. Nelson, Delaware and Montgomery Counties Council; Troop Service Director Jos.

N. Pattison, 3rd, Philadelphia Council; and Field Executive Charles Dannenberg, Chester County Council, West Chester.
